

Top 4 Misconceptions About Distracted Driving

Each day in the U.S., approximately nine people are killed and more than 1,000 are injured in crashes involving a distracted driver, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. This is of particular concern for local governments who keep fleets of municipal vehicles.

Check out four top misconceptions about distracted driving:

1) I'm using hands-free tech, so I'm not distracted.

False. A study by AAA found dialing, changing music or sending a text using voice commands can cause mental distractions for as long as 27 seconds.

2) It only takes a few seconds to read a text, so there's really no harm.

False. Sending or reading a text takes your eyes off the road for five seconds, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. At 55 mph, that's like driving the length of a football field with your eyes closed.

3) Distracted driving is safer than drinking and driving.

False. Drivers using cell phones had slower reaction times than drivers with a blood alcohol concentration of 0.08, or the legal limit in all 50 states, according to a University of Utah study.

4) Cell phone use is the leading cause of distracted driving accidents.

False. More than half of distracted driving accidents were caused by conversations with passengers, according to federal data.

Learn more

Visit www.argolimited.com/trident for tips, training and other resources government employers can use to help employees drive more safely.

For more timely articles and insights into public entity risk, follow Trident Public Risk Solutions on LinkedIn.

Website links referenced within the content of this document may lead to other sites that Trident Insurance Service LLC ("Trident") believes may be useful or informative. These links to third-party sites or information are not intended as, and should not be interpreted by you as, constituting or implying Trident's endorsement, sponsorship or recommendation of the third-party information, products or services found there. Trident does not maintain or control these sites and accordingly makes no guarantee concerning the accuracy, reliability or currency of the information appearing on such sites.

The insurance policies, not this descriptive article, form the contract between the insured and the insurance company. The policies contain limits, exclusions and conditions that are not listed in this article. All coverages are subject to individual underwriting judgments and to state legal and regulatory requirements. This article is provided for informational purposes only and does not constitute legal advice. Policies for this program are issued by one or more insurance companies of Argo Group International Holdings Ltd. Trident is a registered service mark of Argo Group International Holdings Ltd.